SUNSHINE COAST RESIDENTS PROVIDE CONSTRUCTIVE FEEDBACK ON PROPOSED DEVELOPMENT AT CALOUNDRA SOUTH

Stockland today thanked the Sunshine Coast Council, local residents and environment groups for contributing to the draft Caloundra South Public Environment Report (PER).

Stockland received 31 responses to its draft PER, which sets out how the development could proceed whilst protecting the local, surrounding natural environment during construction and in perpetuity, once the project is complete.

A recurring theme of a number of the submissions received by Stockland relate to water quality in the Pumicestone Passage.

“We’ve been working closely with stakeholders to clarify their concerns in the final plan,” said Kingsley Andrew, Queensland General Manager, Residential Development at Stockland. “Management of construction run-off was a key part of the draft PER and our team is working to provide further clarification in our final report.”

“Public consultation and collaboration with all levels of government is helping us to prepare a comprehensive approach to the protection and enhancement of the local environment,” said Kingsley Andrew.

Stockland will undertake a detailed review of all environmental protection strategies proposed for the development to ensure it achieves the best possible outcomes for the local wetlands and marine environment.

“We appreciate the time and resources that individuals and groups have invested to review the draft PER report. We are also grateful for the quality of the feedback we’ve received,” added Mr Andrew.

“We’re now reviewing all submissions and we will update and finalise the Public Environment Report, which will be submitted to the Commonwealth Government in the coming months.”
