STOCKLAND NAMED ONE OF THE GLOBAL 100 MOST SUSTAINABLE COMPANIES IN THE WORLD

Stockland, Australia's largest diversified property group, was last night named one of the Global 100 Most Sustainable Corporations in the World at the World Economic Forum in Davos, Switzerland.

Stockland has now been named in the Global 100 index for five consecutive years, and is the only Australian property company to ever achieve the distinction.

Stockland was named at position number 32 of the Global 100 at the World Economic Forum last night, which is a significant move up the rankings after being named at number 83 in 2013.

The 'Global 100' recognises the world's 100 top-performing stocks, based on a range of 12 sector-specific sustainability metrics, including Energy Productivity, Safety Performance and Innovation Capacity.

Mark Steinert, Managing Director and CEO at Stockland, said: "To be recognised once again at the World Economic Forum is a great honour and testament to the hard work and commitment of our people in achieving excellence in sustainability."

"We place a high priority on sustainability and the creation of 'shared value' for all stakeholders, including our customers, the communities where we operate and our shareholders. Shared value is about creating vibrant, inclusive communities that are well considered and generate many different types of long-term benefits in perpetuity."

Stockland's energy efficiency program across its retail shopping centres alone has contributed to AU$35 million savings in energy costs and reduced CO₂ emissions by 55,000 tonnes since 2006.

Ramana James, National Sustainability Manager at Stockland, said: "We're always seeking new opportunities to improve our sustainability management, performance and disclosure; whether it's through the development of the first Green Star rated retirement living village at Selandra Rise in Victoria, or our work with Jamie's Ministry of Food to improve community education on health and wellbeing."

The Global 100 Most Sustainable Corporations in the World is compiled by Corporate Knights, a Toronto-based media and investment research company. Corporate Knights considered all publicly traded companies that had a market capitalisation in excess of US$2 billion. Corporate Knights screened companies through sustainability disclosure practices, financial health, product category and financial sanctions to create the 2014 Global 100 Shortlist. The research company then began collecting data from Bloomberg and through direct engagement with each of the companies for detailed evaluation.

Stockland was also recently awarded Real Estate Super Sector Leader on the international Dow Jones Sustainability Index, which is the sixth consecutive year that Stockland has featured on the list.

Stockland

Stockland (ASX: SGP) was founded in 1952 and has grown to become Australia's largest diversified property group – owning, developing and managing a large portfolio of shopping centres, residential communities, retirement living villages, office and industrial assets. Stockland was recognised by the S&P Dow Jones Sustainability Indices (DJSI) as the Global Real Estate Industry Group Leader for 2013 – 14 and was also named one of the Global 100 Most Sustainable Corporations in the World at the World Economic Forum in Davos, Switzerland in 2014, for the fifth consecutive year.
